Dear Colleagues and Friends,

Welcome to Warsaw, to our 2023 AIB Conference.

The theme for this year's conference proposed by our Program Chair, Kaz Asakawa: "International Business Resilience under Global Disruption," summarizes the global scenario we all live in. Topics include resilience to develop or maintain a new world order, to disinvest or invest in international operations, to deal with innovation, to cope with changes in consumer behavior, global value chain disruption, and issues regarding cyber security, among others.

The choice of location: Warsaw, Poland, is the most appropriate to shelter our discussions and reflections. Warsaw is a beautiful city that has witnessed many transformations during the last century, mainly in the previous three decades: economic, political, technological, and cultural. The Old Town was rebuilt after being devastated during the II World War and is recognized as a UNESCO World Heritage Site. Warsaw has hosted many international events: cultural, artistic, pro-sustainability, and other relevant topics.

And today, they are hosting us to present, discuss, and consider high-impact themes that concern not only us as scholars, researchers, and public policy makers but as citizens. Diversity, in all its dimensions: race, gender, sex, cultural and inclusion, will be present, permeating our debates. The AIB Annual Conference, rotating its location in different continents and countries offers an opportunity to fully experiment this cultural dimension. You will have panels and sessions on the different themes attracting large audiences.

The Academy of International Business is a unique association with 13 chapters spread around the world, in Asia, Africa, Europe, North America, Latin America, and the Caribbean, hosting their conferences and activities. Our Shared Interest Groups now include Women in AIB, Research Methods, Teaching and Education, Sustainability, and Emerging Markets. All of them are organizing webinars as well as teaching and research activities, working closely with the chapters in a matrix model. A new SIG is being created on Global Digitalization; we are all excited about its prospects.

On the educational front, the AIB-CIBER Doctoral Academy, under the leadership of Tamer Cavusgil, working closely with the T&E SIG, is being launched and will select candidates soon. The Emerging Markets SIG has successfully launched a program for young scholars and students on International Business. We will have a panel about the AIB-CIBER Doctoral Academy and a special session for researchers and scholars from the emerging markets.

Our three journals continue to perform extremely well: JIBS, JIBP, and AIB Insights. JIBS has a new editor: Rosalie Tung, and JIBP: Ari Van Assche. I want to express our special thanks to the previous editors: Alain Verbeke and Sarianna Lundan.

I also want to express my gratitude to our hosts from SGH: Piotr Wachowiak, rector of SGH Warsaw School of Economics, as well as Miroslaw Jarosinski, Local Chair, and Wioletta Mierzejewska, Local Co-chair. Thanks also to Kaz Asakawa and Catherine Welch, our Vice Presidents, who put together an array of panels and activities for the conference and pre-conference.

The AIB board: Peter Liesch (incoming president), Andrew Delios, Kaz Asakawa, Catherine Welch (VPPs), Dana Minbaeva, Vas Taras, and Matt Raskovic (VPAs) have been unflagging in their dedication to AIB. I am grateful to all of them and warmly welcome our newly elected leaders Gary Knight, Sri Zaheer, and Liena Kano.

Our Executive Director, Tunga Kiyak, is a crucial engine in organizing this conference and the AIB activities together with his team – my special thanks to you all.

Being part of the Academy of International Business is a learning process that unites all of us. We learn how to be not only citizens of our country but citizens of the world.

Welcome to the 2023 AIB Conference.

Sincerely,
Maria Tereza Fleury
AIB President

Rector

Dear Conference Participants,

I have the pleasure to welcome you to SGH Warsaw School of Economics for the 2023 Annual Meeting of the Academy of International Business. SGH is proud to host this prestigious gathering as it aligns perfectly with our commitment to academic excellence and fostering international cooperation.

As unpredictability continues to reshape our world, it is increasingly crucial to explore and understand the challenges and opportunities presented by the changing global environment. The need for innovative approaches, insightful research, and collaborative efforts becomes even more evident. Therefore, I strongly believe that the AIB meeting will provide an excellent opportunity for participants to exchange ideas, present trailblazing research, and gain valuable insights that will shape the future of international business education.

SGH Warsaw School of Economics is the oldest, most prestigious, and innovative university of economics and management in Poland and the region. Our mission is to shape socially responsible leaders capable of addressing challenges of the future. Our university enrolls over 10,000 students and offers a wide range of undergraduate and graduate courses, including English-language BA, MA and PhD programs. For decades, SGH alumni have played a significant role in shaping the political and economic landscape of Poland.

SGH collaborates with over 300 academic partners worldwide and actively engages with numerous international organizations. We are proud to hold EQUIS and AMBA accreditations. In addition, in July 2022, SGH was honored with the Business School Impact System (BSIS) Label by EFMD Global and FNEGE in recognition of our accomplishments and successful completion of the BSIS Impact enhancement process.

Since the early 1990s, SGH has been at the forefront of educational initiatives in collaboration with international partners. It offers 17 double-degree programs with both European and non-European universities. As the only Polish university, SGH is a proud member of the prestigious CEMS MIM program and of the Partnership in International Management (PIM) network. Additionally, since 2022, SGH Warsaw School of Economics has joined CIVICA – The European University of Social Sciences, an alliance comprising leading European universities with 72,000 students and (post)doctoral researchers, as well as 20,000 academic and administrative staff across Europe.

In addition to our commitment to excellent teaching, which is evidenced by remarkable job placement rates and a strong reputation among employers, SGH is renowned for its research activities, with internationalization of research standing as our strategic goal.

Our faculty members are affiliated with numerous international associations. Among them are the Academy of International Business (AIB), International Entrepreneurship Development Forum (IEDF), l'Association Internationale des Economistes de Langue Française (AIELF), The Risk, Banking and Finance Society, The Institute for Operations Research and the Management Sciences (INFORMS), and many others.

I am proud that the Academy of International Business holds a prominent place within our extensive global network of scientific contacts.

Allow me to reiterate my best wishes for a highly successful conference! I sincerely hope that you will enjoy your visit to SGH, Warsaw and Poland as you engage in fruitful discussions and foster valuable connections.

Sincerely,

Prof. Piotr Wachowiak

Dear Colleagues,

A warm welcome to Warsaw and the 65th annual meeting of the Academy of International Business. And welcome to our in-person meeting in Warsaw, one of the major cultural, political, and economic hubs in Europe! Poland, which has been exposed to many geopolitical and socioeconomic changes over the years, provides an important setting to discuss this year's conference theme, "International Business Resilience under Global Disruptions".

Today's international business is challenged by unprecedented global disruptions. Such global disruptions undoubtedly influence the nature of international business (IB). Resilience is called for at various levels – government, MNC, and individual - to deal with global crises. We have sessions that feature a wide range of IB resilience and its implications for research and practice on IB. They suggest what new capabilities are necessary for government, MNCs, and individual managers to cope with disruptions; what new roles policy makers, business managers, and employees play in building more resilient global communities; and what new sources of competitive advantage of nations and firms are in the age of global disruption.

AIB 2023 would not have been possible without the efforts of many dedicated people. My big thanks go to all the authors, reviewers, panelists, and session chairs. Many thanks to all the participants - over 1,100 registrants at the time of this writing - who have chosen to join us in-person.

It would never be possible to organize the AIB meetings without the dedication of the AIB Secretariat. Above all, Tunga Kiyak kept providing invaluable guidance and support about every aspect of organizing the AIB conference. A sincere thank you to Tunga who is a true professional in every sense of the word.

Generous support has also been provided by our local host, SGH Warsaw School of Economics. In particular, very special thanks to the SGH Rector Piotr Wachowiak, the Dean of Collegium of Management and Finance Joanna Wielogórska-Leszczynska, the Dean of Collegium of World Economy Mariusz Próchniak, the Local Committee Chair Mirosław (Mirek) Jarosiński, and the Local Committee Deputy Chair Wioletta Mierzejewska. My sincere thanks to Mirek for his dedication and leadership to host AIB 2023 in such a professional manner.

Throughout the process of preparing the conference, the AIB Executive Board led by the President Maria Tereza Leme Fleury has provided valuable guidance. I'm particularly grateful to the past Program Chairs Gary Knight and Andrew Delios for their invaluable advice and support whenever I needed them. The AIB Fellows, under the leadership of the Dean Lorraine Eden, nominated the recipients of the awards, and organized a consortium, special panels and the Fellows Cafes. As a notable change this year, the Fellows Cafes are scattered throughout the day instead of being concentrated in the early morning.

Our Track Chairs have done a remarkable job preparing for AIB 2023: sending the papers out for review, putting together the sessions, organizing the special panels, suggesting chairs and nominating candidates for different awards within their respective tracks. I was particularly grateful for their commitment to meet the deadlines under time pressure. With so many quality submissions this year, the track chairs skillfully managed to narrow their acceptances to the allocated targets.

In the course of putting the conference program together, many of you have corresponded with my assistant at Keio Business School, Hidehiro Ito. I'm extremely grateful for all his assistance and hard work.

The pre-conference program, under the visionary leadership of Catherine Welch, offers a wide array of innovative professional development opportunities. For the first time, the AIB will be offering an All-Academy workshop on peer reviewing, featuring editors of IB journals and winners of best reviewing awards. Other events include the RM-SIG's workshops featuring innovative approaches to both qualitative and quantitative research; a PDW devoted to the topic of sustainability, organized by the Sustainability SIG and supported by the main IB journals; and a coaching session on EDI research organized by WAIB, for papers at an early stage of development.

As in previous years, we are proud to receive and honor the recipients of the three major awards given by the AIB Fellows. International Executive of the Year: Paul Polman, former CEO, Unilever; International Educator of the year: Salvador Carmona, IE University, Madrid; and John Fayerweather Eminent Scholar: Franklin Allen, University College London.

The panels and the paper sessions in the main conference will be a source of our intellectual stimulation. Among others, I would like to draw attention to the special panels featuring the recipients of the awards given by the AIB Fellows: International Executive of the Year, International Educator of the year, and John Fayerweather Eminent Scholar. The main program also offers a wide array of special panels organized by the Track Chairs, the Program Chair, and the Fellows. The theme of the Local track, "Growth perspectives of CEE region in times of disruption," is well aligned with this year's conference theme.

We have many sessions that feature a wide range of IB resilience and its implications for research and practice on IB. This year's conference theme on disruption and resilience should spark intense discussions of new IB paradigms, changes and continuity in IB, and myths and reality in IB in the age of global disruption. I hope you will find the AIB 2023 conference intellectually stimulating and congenial, and the AIB a welcoming and valuable professional community.

Sincerely,
Kazuhiro Asakawa

AIB Fellows' International Executive of the Year Award

Award Presentation Session: Opening Plenary – 6 July, 17:15-19:30, Aula Glówna (Main Auditorium)

Paul Polman
Former CEO, Unilever

Paul Polman works to accelerate action by business to tackle climate change and inequality. He believes, above all, that humanity will only overcome our greatest shared challenges through far-reaching systems change and bold new partnerships to deliver the UN Sustainable Development Goals, which he helped develop.

As CEO of Unilever (2009-2019), Paul demonstrated that business can profit through purpose, marrying a long-term, multi-stakeholder model with excellent financial performance. During Paul's tenure, shareholders saw their returns increase by 290% while the company consistently ranked 1st in the world for sustainability and as one of best places to work.

Today Paul works across a range of organizations and initiatives to help speed the global action needed to regenerate our planet, renew our economies and unite our societies. He helps business move further and faster on these ambitions, including through his work with Systemiq and through mobilizing private equity.

He helps drive bold new coalitions within industries such as fashion and food, as well as between the private sector, government and civil society, including through his work leading the UN Global Compact and as an Ambassador for the Race to Zero and Race to Resilience.

Paul is also passionate about developing our next generation of leaders, which he does as chair of the Oxford University Saïd Business School, and through his work with INSEAD, IESE and the Boards of PRME and One Young World.

Last year Paul's published his critically-acclaimed book with sustainability expert Andrew Winston, "Net Positive", which sets out how to build companies which succeed by fixing the world's problems, rather than creating them. He actively campaigns on a range of human rights issues, including promoting disability inclusion through the Valuable 500 and the Kilimanjaro Blind Trust, which he set up with his wife Kim. Follow him on twitter and LinkedIn and sign up to receive his newsletter here.

AIB Fellows' International Educator of the Year Award

Award Presentation and Keynote: Session 1.3.1 – 7 July, 13:00-14:15, Aula Glówna (Main Auditorium)

Salvador Carmona IE University

Under the leadership of Salvador Carmona, the IE University and its Business School have been transformed into leading research and educational hubs not only within Spain but also globally, attracting international faculty (40% of the full-time faculty is international, from 42 countries), and students (76% of bachelor-degree students are international, from 102 nationalities) and consistently climb upwards within various rankings.

The IE University is representative of a relatively new cohort of non-state owned universities and business schools such as Bocconi and LUISS in Italy, among others. The university aims to “break the mold” of the traditional ways of learning in Spain and elsewhere by introducing highly innovative learning practices. The IE has been very successful in securing its economic sustainability and independence while providing an internationally recognized base for research and education. To a significant degree this success has been based on the IE’s innovative leadership team led by Salvador Carmona, and in particular his efforts to connect other disciplines, such as management control, accounting and finance, with international business.

As a Professor of Accounting and Management Control, Professor Carmona is using business history as a heuristic lens to explore some of the best ideas in business organization and strategy that originated centuries ago. Using Spain’s extensive archives he has been tracing the history of global companies like the Royal Tobacco Factory of Seville, what he believes is an early form of just-in-time production. This company is also one of the first global enterprises whose products have been traded within Spain, Europe, and Spanish dominions in the New World. Professor Carmona has also adopted a critical historical perspective to examine the role of accounting in international relations and trade by focusing on the Asiento, the treaty that granted Britain the monopoly to trade slaves with the Spanish American colonies from 1713 to 1743.

In addition to teaching and research, Prof. Carmona engages in consultancy work for corporations as well as conducting executive training and in-company programs aimed at the top-level management of multinational enterprises. Salvador is a true champion of interdisciplinary research; as an example, he co-edited a special issue of Accounting and Business Review aimed at integration of international business with contemporary accounting and finance.

Professor Carmona obtained both BSc and PhD in Economics and Business Administration at the University of Seville, Spain, and a CPCL from Harvard University. Before joining the IE University in 2002, he held prominent positions in other leading Spanish Universities, including Dean of the School of Social and Legal Sciences at the Universidad Carlos III (Madrid), and Professor and Chairman of the Department of Accounting at the Universidad de Sevilla.

AIB Fellows' Eminent Scholar Award

Award Presentation and Keynote: Session 2.3.1 – 8 July, 13:00-14:15, Aula Glówna (Main Auditorium)

Franklin Allen Imperial College London

Franklin Allen is Professor of Finance and Economics and Executive Director of the Brevan Howard Centre at Imperial College London, UK. Previously, he was a chaired professor at the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania and was Co-Director of the Wharton Financial Institutions Center.

Dr. Allen is globally famous for his work in corporate finance, financial intermediaries and institutions, and finance for development. Within this umbrella, his work also spans financial innovation, financial inclusion, banking and financial crises, and corporate governance in emerging economies. His studies in comparative financial systems and development include the US, Europe, China, India, and Sub-Saharan Africa. Allen's wide-ranging contributions have appeared in the premier journals of both finance and economics (JPE, JET, JIT). At the time of this announcement, his works have a Google Scholar citation count of 90,828.

Franklin Allen has received numerous recognitions for his impact on the profession. He was Executive Editor of the Review of Financial Studies and Managing Editor of the Review of Finance. He is a past president of the American Finance Association, the Western Finance Association, and the Financial Management Association. He is a Fellow of the Econometric Society.

Fellows Café: Challenges in Assessing Intercultural Competence (Session# 231631)

Chairs: Allan Bird, Northeastern University and Elizabeth Rose, IIM Udaipur

Fellows Cafés are open to all conference participants. Join a small group discussion hosted by AIB Fellows and focused on an IB topic of current and mutual interest.

Assurance of learning initiatives driven by accrediting bodies have amplified the need for psychometrically robust assessments that can measure the development of intercultural competence among students. Meanwhile, increased research interest in how managers develop intercultural competence has fostered the increased use of psychometric assessments to establish pre- and post-intervention levels. Theoretically and methodologically there are significant challenges in measuring intercultural competence. Let's explore them together.

Master Class A on 'Publishing in International Marketing (Session# 232015)

Chair: Gary Knight, Willamette University

Research and publications in scholarly IB journals are vitally important to an individual's growth, development, and success in academia. Various philosophical approaches underpin international business (IB) research. A key challenge to researching and writing scholarly work is developing the theoretical dimension of academic research papers. In this master class, I will explain the role of philosophy and theory, and the critical skills involved in identifying and including appropriate theory in research articles. I will also discuss developing novel theoretical contributions in IB research.

These Master Classes are being offered through the generous contributions of the Sheth Foundation.

Teaching Café: Engaging Experiences in the Classroom (Session# 231640)

Let's discuss and share ideas on creating engaging experiences in the classroom through experiential learning, humor, and memorable moments that capture student interests, curiosity, and connect to their passions. Please come to share your ideas, and to hear from others in this informal exchange.

Facilitators:

Karen Lynden, University of North Carolina Wilmington

Mikael Soendergaard, Aarhus University

The Teaching Cafés are organized by AIB's Teaching & Education Shared Interest Group.

Session 1.4.19 - Special Session

Track: 16. Clinics and Cafés

Time: 14:30-15:45

Room: 207

Fellows Café: War, Sanctions, and Other Global Disruptions and Multinational Corporations (Session# 231623)

Chairs: Ajai Gaur, Rutgers University and Klaus Meyer, Ivey Business School

Fellows Cafés are open to all conference participants. Join a small group discussion hosted by AIB Fellows and focused on an IB topic of current and mutual interest.

After experiencing several decades of favorable conditions for international business activities, multinationals are facing an environment with rising skepticism against globalization. Recent geopolitical events, such as the Western sanctions against Russia and the trade war between the US and China have forced multinational firms to rethink their global posture and strategies. In this café, we will discuss the consequences of war, sanctions and other global disruptions for international business activities, broadly defined.

Session 1.4.20 - Special Session

Track: 16. Clinics and Cafés

Time: 14:30-15:45

Room: 205

Fellows Café: Strategic Theory of the MNE and Sustainability (Session# 231634)

Chair: Chris Pitelis, Leeds University

Fellows Cafés are open to all conference participants. Join a small group discussion hosted by AIB Fellows and focused on an IB topic of current and mutual interest.

Revisit Hymer's original strategic theory of the MNE and compare to subsequent IB theories. Explore how more recent developments in strategy and entrepreneurship, such as dynamic capabilities, co-creation and orchestration, can help bolster it further. Highlight tensions and trade offs that undermine multi-level sustainability and ways to fully embrace and integrate sustainability within the strategies IB theory.

Session 1.4.21 - Special Session

Track: 16. Clinics and Cafés

Time: 14:30-15:45

Room: 151

Fellows Café: Social Psychology of Cross-Cultural Consumer Behavior (Session# 231624)

Chairs: Attila Yaprak, Wayne State University and Saeed Samiee, The University of Tulsa

Fellows Cafés are open to all conference participants. Join a small group discussion hosted by AIB Fellows and focused on an IB topic of current and mutual interest.

This Café will explore the scholarly and managerial significance of the social psychology questions that will help move international marketing (IM) scholarship on this topic forward. Deeper understanding on these questions is now more important in informing marketing managers about the consumer decision processes that drive global consumption culture.

Session 1.4.25 - Special Session

Fellows Café: Using Qualitative Methods to Study New-to-the-Literature Phenomena (Session# 231625)

Chair: Becky Reuber, University of Toronto

Fellows Cafés are open to all conference participants. Join a small group discussion hosted by AIB Fellows and focused on an IB topic of current and mutual interest.

There have been calls for IB research to encompass a greater diversity of phenomena, such as digitization, migrant entrepreneurs, and under-studied geographic regions. Qualitative methods are well-suited to providing conceptualizations and interpretations of new-to-the-literature empirical settings. However researchers may encounter a “messiness” they did not anticipate when using methods developed in more familiar settings. In this Cafe we will discuss challenges researchers may face and how they might be managed.

Room: 205

Fellows Café: The "Dark Side" of Moderation Analysis: Some Food for Thought (Session# 232025)

Chair: Adamantios Diamantopoulos, University of Vienna

Fellows Cafés are open to all conference participants. Join a small group discussion hosted by AIB Fellows and focused on an IB topic of current and mutual interest.

Although moderation analysis is widely used in IB research and while both authors and reviewers generally favor the specification of (often complex) moderating relationships, the potential downsides of the resulting models are rarely considered. This round-table discussion seeks to explore the "dark side" of complex moderator models in terms of replicability and generalizability, and encourage a more balanced perspective on moderation analysis in empirical research.

Teaching Café: Teaching and Learning in Times of Crisis (Session# 231636)

In times of multiple environmental and humanitarian crises, previous assumptions about teaching and learning environments are challenged. Against the backdrop of these events, fostering the resilience of both faculty members and students is of utmost importance. We are interested in sharing our experiences, hearing about ongoing initiatives, and discussing best practices with fellow educators to actively shape our new normal of teaching and learning in times of crisis.

Facilitators:

Taras Danko, National Technical University

Marina Schmitz, IEDC Bled School of Management

The Teaching Cafés are organized by AIB's Teaching & Education Shared Interest Group.

Emerging Market Shared Interest Group: Amplifying the Impact of a Large Community (Session# 230925)

Chair: Helena Barnard, University of Petoria

Many AIB members come from emerging market countries, still live there, or are professionally interested in business into and from emerging markets. The emerging markets track is always one of the biggest tracks at the AIB World conference. Yet there has never been a single organization that brought together and sought to leverage the interest and energy of this community. In 2022, AIB's Emerging Markets Shared Interest Group was founded. This SIG aims to become a convening group that amplifies the emerging market-related efforts and energies of chapters and other SIGs. This panel serves to share what initiatives we have identified as core, and to hear from our constituents how the EM SIG can best serve AIB.

Panelists:

Helena Barnard, University of Petoria
Kristin Brandl, University of Victoria
Maoliang Bu, Nanjing University

Master Class B on International Marketing 'Publishing in International Marketing' (Session# 232016)

Chair: Saeed Samiee, The University of Tulsa

This Master Class focuses on developing and preparing manuscripts for submission to scholarly journals. It will highlight issues emphasized by editors and reviewers that tend to undermine manuscript success. The goal is to prepare and polish research papers so as to heighten reviewer curiosity and interest, while reducing reviewer frustration, boredom, and resistance. The class will give particular attention to key sections of manuscripts, including the abstract, introduction, conceptual framing, methods, implications, citations, and tables and appendices. To the extent possible, the session will be interactive, with the goal of incorporating audience questions, experiences, and issues.

These Master Classes are being offered through the generous contributions of the Sheth Foundation.

Reputation is theorized as a firm-specific assets, but in some industries firms' reputation is derived from access to distinctive locational assets that are abundant in their locals. This Cafe will explore the consequences of this state of affairs for firms' ability to differentiate themselves and establish firm-specific competitive advantage.

Fellows Café: How to Build More Resilient Value Chains (Session# 232027)

Chair: Torben Pedersen, Copenhagen Business School

Fellows Cafés are open to all conference participants. Join a small group discussion hosted by AIB Fellows and focused on an IB topic of current and mutual interest.

The globalization of supply chains is both the enabler and the effect of the globalized economy. Recently, it has become clear that the high level of efficiency of tight global supply chains came with a cost as turbulence and resulting supply chain disruptions have become more frequent and common. A greater level of resilience in the global supply chain stands out as the main mechanism to mitigate challenges. While achieving resilience without doubt is challenging for companies, it can be done and we discuss a selection of initiatives companies can take in this regard.

Research Methods Clinic: Qualitative Research (Session# 231643)

Chair: Rebecca Piekkari, Aalto University

Join a group discussion, with an expert, organized around a specific research methodology of interest. Discuss best practices, or get advice on specific problems that you may be facing.

This session is organized by the AIB Research Methods SIG.

Session 2.5.19 - Special Session

Track: 16. Clinics and Cafés

Time: 16:15-17:30

Room: 207

Fellows Café: Digitalization and International Business (Session# 231628)

Chairs: Nicole Coviello, Wilfrid Laurier University and Saeed Samiee, The University of Tulsa

Fellows Cafés are open to all conference participants. Join a small group discussion hosted by AIB Fellows and focused on an IB topic of current and mutual interest.

Digitalization is transforming organizations at a global level. Our cafe conversation will focus on emerging research trajectories stemming from digitalization, and implications for how we teach IB in a digital world.

Session 2.5.20 - Special Session

Track: 16. Clinics and Cafés

Time: 16:15-17:30

Room: 205

Fellows Café: Corporate Governance, Finance and Global Strategy (Session# 231621)

Chairs: Igor Filatotchev, Kings College London and Roger Strange, University of Sussex

Fellows Cafés are open to all conference participants. Join a small group discussion hosted by AIB Fellows and focused on an IB topic of current and mutual interest.

Too often, researchers consider corporate finance, governance and strategic management as separate domains associated with the process of firm internationalization. But there are many opportunities to build conceptual and empirical bridges between these disciplines. This café will provide encouragement and guidance regarding integrative, cross-disciplinary research across IB, finance, corporate governance and global strategy.

Session 2.5.21 - Special Session

Track: 16. Clinics and Cafés

Time: 16:15-17:30

Room: 151

Fellows Café: Reverse Innovation: A Decade Later (Session# 231630)

Chair: Ravi Ramamurti, Northeastern University

Fellows Cafés are open to all conference participants. Join a small group discussion hosted by AIB Fellows and focused on an IB topic of current and mutual interest.

This Café will take a look back at what the evidence has shown about the role of innovation in emerging economies, its diffusion to other parts of the world, including developed countries (i.e. "reverse innovation"), and the relative roles of developed-country MNCs and emerging-market MNCs in that process. We will discuss examples from different industries and countries, and speculate on how the phenomenon might play out in the next decade.

SATURDAY, JULY 8 - 19:00-22:00

Fellows Café: The Diffusion of AI Adoption in the Context of Global Businesses: New Opportunities and Challenges for IB Researchers (Session# 231629)

Chairs: Igor Filatotchev, Kings College London and Keith Brouthers, King's College London

Fellows Cafés are open to all conference participants. Join a small group discussion hosted by AIB Fellows and focused on an IB topic of current and mutual interest.

The rapid diffusion, adoption and use of new digital technologies, including Artificial Intelligence (AI) – often referred to as digital transformation or 4th industrial revolution – have triggered profound changes in the global economy, society and institutions. Not surprisingly, a rich literature in the IB domain has been emerging to shed light on these changes. For instance, the AI-based technology changes and their adoption have been linked to organizational experimentation and the emergence of new sociotechnical practices. Researchers have also increasingly highlighted that the organizational outcomes of the digital transformation are far from being unidirectional, unambiguous and always positive. As a result, the MNEs' strategies in the technology domain are associated with increasing uncertainties for companies, their shareholders and other stakeholders. This Fellows Cafe will focus on the complex interface between AI-related innovation, global strategy and corporate governance in the environment of rapid technological change.

Fellows Cafés are open to all conference participants. Join a small group discussion hosted by AIB Fellows and focused on an IB topic of current and mutual interest.

"Foreign investors in Russia and on energy companies processing fossil fuels both face pressures to divest major assets. But the ethics of 'divesting' is much more complex than 'not investing' - among other because it matters what happens with said assets and with employees. Fellows Café: The Use and Misuse of Signaling Theory in Academic Research (Session# 232030)

Chair: Eric Tsang, University of Texas at Dallas

Fellows Cafés are open to all conference participants. Join a small group discussion hosted by AIB Fellows and focused on an IB topic of current and mutual interest.

There has been a proliferation of studies using signaling theory. However, confusions arise concerning the nature of a signal, such as whether a signal can be costless (contrary to Michael Spence's original conceptualization).

Fellows Café: Revisiting Formal Coordination Mechanisms in Multinational Management (Session# 232032)

Chair: Sea-Jin Chang, National University of Singapore

Fellows Cafés are open to all conference participants. Join a small group discussion hosted by AIB Fellows and focused on an IB topic of current and mutual interest.

Prior works on inter-subsidiary coordination have predominantly focused on informal mechanisms that rely on individuals who play boundary-panning roles. To complement informal coordination mechanisms, multinational firms should adopt formal coordination mechanisms. In this case, researchers discuss several possible ways to advance studies on formal coordination mechanisms with newly available data and methodologies.

Teaching Café: Addressing Different Ableness through Teaching and Creating Safe Spaces (Session# 231641)

The Teaching Café will look at how to address different ableness in the classroom - both from the perspective of students and educators. Our Café will raise awareness around visible (e.g., being vision impaired or requiring a wheelchair) and less visible or invisible (e.g., being on the autism spectrum) disabilities by sharing experiences and best practices of how to deliver on inclusive, psychologically and physically safe spaces for all who feel like they do not belong in the classroom and/or might be differently abled.

Facilitators:

Matt Raskovic, Auckland University of Technology
Miriam Moeller, University of Queensland
Jing Betty Feng, Farmingdale State College (SUNY)

The Teaching Cafés are organized by AIB's Teaching & Education Shared Interest Group.

Session 3.4.19 - Special Session

Room: 207

Fellows Café: MNEs and Responsible Global Business (Session# 232033)

Chairs: Attila Yaprak, Wayne State University and S. Tamer Cavusgil, Georgia State University

Fellows Cafés are open to all conference participants. Join a small group discussion hosted by AIB Fellows and focused on an IB topic of current and mutual interest.

Responsible global business has become an inescapable imperative for internationalizing firms. It is now essential for MNEs to become responsible in the way they respond to their markets' needs with social impact while simultaneously being good to their stakeholders at home and abroad. This cafe will explore the emerging research questions that this phenomenon has generated and will suggest avenues for future research.

Session 3.4.20 - Special Session

Time: 14:30-15:45

Track: 16. Clinics and Cafés

Room: 205

Fellows Café: What Percentage of Internationalization Episodes can be Explained by the Uppsala Internationalization Process Model? (Session# 232031)

Chair: Jean-Francois Hennart, Tilburg School of Economics and Management

Fellows Cafés are open to all conference participants. Join a small group discussion hosted by AIB Fellows and focused on an IB topic of current and mutual interest.

The initial tenets of the Uppsala model, that in-depth knowledge of foreign countries is necessary for selling abroad and that firms progress from exporting to foreign investment as they acquire such knowledge, have been by and large uncritically accepted by most IB scholars. Yet there is a good deal of empirical evidence that has shown this not to be the case. I would like participants in this cafe to share and discuss the findings of their research that do not support these assumptions.

SUNDAY, JULY 9 - 15:45-16:15

Time: 15:45-16:15

Coffee Break (Session# 232008)

Refreshments will be provided for conference participants.
